Farmingville, NY – On Thursday, May 18, Councilwoman Jane Bonner will host "A Homeowner's Guide to Energy Efficiency" event at the Rose Caracappa Senior Center in Mount Sinai from 7:00 pm to 8:00 pm. During the event, homeowners will learn how to:

- Get a free energy audit and find the areas where your home is wasting energy
- Fix issues with affordable home energy improvements
- Save $1000 a year on home energy bills
- Make homes more comfortable year round

"So many people live in homes that are not as energy efficient as they should be and their money is literally going out the window," said Councilwoman Bonner. "Long Island Green Homes can help homeowners lower their energy costs and protect the environment by reducing our carbon footprint."

"A Homeowner's Guide to Energy Efficiency" is sponsored by Long Island Green Homes, a non-profit collaborative partnership of Long Island Towns, community-based organizations and Molloy College. The program is funded primarily with a community outreach grant awarded by the New York State Energy Research and Development Authority (NYSERDA) in order to help Long Islanders improve their homes, use energy more wisely and save money.
